Penetrating the Iron Curtain: Resolving the Missile Gap With Technology (Book and DVD)

In the mid-1950s the US faced the first real challenge since World War II to its strategic superiority over any nation on earth. The attempt to collect intelligence on the Soviets began with an initial period of poor collection capabilities and consequent limited analysis. With few well-placed human sources inside the Soviet Union, it was only with the CIA's development of timely technological wizardry—the U-2 aircraft and Corona Satellite reconnaissance program—that breakthroughs occurred in gaining valuable, game-changing intelligence. 2011: Book (56 p.; ill.) and DVD.

A City Torn Apart: Building of the Berlin Wall (Book and DVD)

From the end of World War II in 1945, the question of Berlin's status 90 miles within the Deutsche Demokratische Republik (East Germany) and the Soviet Union's zone of occupation, along with the status of Germany among the community of nations, remained a source of tension between the East and West. The first of a three-part project, this collection covers the period of 1945 to the end of 1961, during the Kennedy administration. 2011: Book (14 p.; ill.) and DVD.

YouTube War: Fighting in a World of Cameras in Every Cell Phone and Photoshop on Every Computer

Terrorist attacks today are often media events in a second sense: information and communication technologies have developed to such a point that these groups can film, edit, and upload their own attacks within minutes of staging them, whether the Western media are present or not. This is the “YouTube War.” This monograph methodically lays out the nature of this new environment in terms of its implications for a war against media-savvy insurgents, and then considers possible courses of action for the Army and the U.S. military as they seek to respond. 2009: 135 p.

Pathbreakers: U.S. Marine African American Officers in Their Own Words

The purpose of this book is to educate people, specifically prospective African Americans military officers, on how previous African American officers navigated their way through successful careers in the Marine Corps. Contains a collection of interviews conducted with a variety of African American Marine officers. The interviews and comments are presented in chronological format that provides a history in itself but with a uniquely personal perspective. 2013: 273 p.; ill.
